Beethoven: Quartet in D major, Op. 18 No. 3

This is the last quartet in our current transversal of the six Op. 18 quartets -- and what a perfect choice to end our exploration! In sunny D major, quirky, difficult, rewarding, and REALLY fun to play, it is hard to believe that Op. 18 no. 3 was actually the first of the Op. 18s to have been composed. It will be interesting to experience Beethoven's first string quartet in December and Haydn's last string quartet in May.

Haydn: Quartet in F major, Op. 77 No. 2

While Haydn's last quartet is mature not only in terms of Haydn's age and compositional mastery, it also feels like a young man's music especially in the last movement. There is much fiddling away in the 1st movement, of course, followed by a hiccupy sort of minuet and then a lovely and typical slow movement in which everyone eventually takes part in turn. This is a big piece well worth our time and study. Interestingly, both Op. 18 no. 3 and Op. 77 no. 2 were commissioned by the same Prince Lobkowitz, a long-time supporter of both these composers.

THE WORKSHOPS WILL INVOLVE:

- one-on-one coaching in quartet format
- talk by Dr. David Clampitt, musicologist at Ohio State University, on historical and theoretical aspects of the works
- performance of each work by the MSQ

These workshops are open to all players -- amateur, pre-professional and professional. Pre-formed groups are encouraged to apply. Due to the individual nature of the coachings, each workshop is limited to 40 participants.

FROM 10:00 A.M. TO 5:00 P.M.
